Action Dramas at the Torrance

"The Cisco Kid had escaped capture because he could shoot five-sixths of a second sooner than any other man..."

Thus O. Henry described his romantic bandit, whom Warner Baxter brings back to the screen of the Torrance theatre tonight "The Return of the Cisco Kid."

To any other actor, this would probably have proved the most difficult feature of the characterization. But Baxter is a crack marksman and according to Ben Southland, studio gun expert who worked with Baxter a full hour every day for a few weeks prior to the shooting of the picture, the actor's aptitude places him almost on a par with Cisco.

The second feature is Sir Arthur Doyle's "The Hound of the Baskervilles," one of literature's most shocking, spine-chilling

'Aida' Will Have Brilliant Staging

Generally acknowledged to be one of the most popular grand operas ever produced, Verdi's "Aida" will be given two performances in Hollywood Bowl July 7 and 8 as a prelude to the 18th season of Symphonies under the Stars which opens July 11.

"Aida" has been given more performances than any other opera. The Littlefield Ballet will stage special dances and the Hollywood Bowl Chorus of 70 will appear.

staging with special stress on the pageantry and spectacle. An All-Metropolitan cast will sing the principal roles: Dusolina Giannini, Bruno Castagna, Frederick Jagel, Richard Bonelli and Douglas Beattie and the resident artists: Eleanore Woodford and Tudor Williams.

Deanna's Fifth Film Is Hit

Deanna Durbin has done it again.

In her fifth consecutive success, this 16-year-old singing star has bettered her former efforts. The record opens seemed incredible has been accomplished.

When Deanna made "Three Smart Girls" some two and a half years ago, she came as a surprise star, a new entry in the Hollywood firmament. Her picture created a lot of discussion, the burden of which was that it was a fluke, and that she could not repeat.

But now comes "Three Smart Girls Grow Up," her fifth Universal picture. It opens tonight at the Gardena theatre. Deanna sings four songs in "Three Smart Girls Grow Up," beautiful, well-chosen numbers, semi-classics. They are "The Last Rose of Summer," from Flotow's opera "Martha"; "La Capinera," by Sir Julius Benedict; "Invitation to the Dance," by Weber, with Charles Henderson's special vocal arrangement; and "Because," by Edward Tceschemacher and Guy D'Hardelot.

But it is not her singing alone that makes Deanna's pictures screen events of the season. Without singing a song she would probably be voted one of the most popular actresses of the screen.

GOES MAN-ABOUT-TOWN . . . Mickey Rooney in "The Hardys Ride High," starting Saturday at the Plaza theatre in Hawthorne, essays to become a young-man-about-town, visits a night club and meets a glamour girl in the chorus. When he calls on her, however he loses his nerve and runs out.

British Secret Service Broadens Operations

LONDON (U.P.)—More money is being placed at the disposal of the British Secret Service. During 1939 Britain will spend $2,500,000 on this vital service.

Today Britain is spending six times as much on the Secret Service as it did before the World War. Only two men in all Britain know how the money is spent and the result it brings.

However large the amount of money needed by the government for the Secret Service, not a question may be answered in Parliament about the use made of it. The government takes its stand on the principle laid down many years ago: "Questions cannot be answered about the Secret Service because if they were it would no longer be secret."

The only two men who know all about the Secret Service are Sir Robert Vansittart, the cabinet's chief diplomatic adviser, and Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent under-secretary at the foreign office.

Even holders of the highest ministerial office make it a point not to inquire too closely into the service. An M. P. who was an under-secretary at the foreign office, was once unceremoniously hustled out of a room lest he should recognize a prominent member of the Secret Service who was in conference with the permanent under-secretary.

The active head of the Secret Service is in another government department. He holds a post that does not sound a bit like his real job. Even the clerks in his own office do not know his real responsibilities.

Every activity of an unusual nature is interesting to the Secret Service. Abnormal purchases of certain raw materials by a country might well, for instance, be the indication of a coming international crisis.

Road Building Significant
The construction of arterial roads of a strategic character is always highly significant. Establishment of an aerodrome camouflaged as a golf course is another matter for attention. Railway sidings out of all proportion to trade requirements in obscure parts of any Continental country immediately excite the curiosity of Britain's truly "silent" service.

Deepening of harbors does the same; and it may now be revealed that British foreign office knew of Adolf Hitler's intention to enlarge the Kiel Canal two years ago, although it was only recently disclosed in Germany.

It was in consequence of information gleaned in Germany three years ago that the British government decided to provide the British public with gas masks.

State Leaders Watched
Even the personal relations between the heads of states and their ministers and the health, both political and physical, of leading foreign politicians are a matter of constant report by the service.

The majority of men and women working for the Secret Service are only employed occasionally. Otherwise they might arouse suspicion and nullify their usefulness. All or nearly all of them have some other occupation, and the sums paid them for their services differ greatly. Few indeed regard the pay as the main inducement to serve.

The work of the Secret Service is not confined to foreign countries. Its members are put to work on such problems as the recent bomb outrages in Britain, and generally to watch the activities of those who seek to undermine Britain's interests.

The golden rule of the Secret Service is to put as little as possible into writing. In a service with little glamour about it there is one melodramatic touch—few of the members know who are their colleagues. They refer to them by numbers, A99 and so on.

Dodge Sales Lead Field Here, Litch Learns in Report

Sales of new Dodge cars to local residents during the month of May topped all other makes in this city, according to work received by Walter Litch, Dodge dealer, this week. Litch also learned, he said, that Dodge sales in Redondo Beach lead the field there during May, outstripping other automobiles two to one.

"Our sales of new Dodges in the South Bay district, which includes Torrance, Palos Verdes, Redondo, Hermosa and Manhattan Beach, put our new models in second place for the past month," Litch reported.
